

No one likes to think about natural disasters—or even man-made ones. But in the event of an earthquake, fire, flood or even a terrorist attack, it's reassuring to know the Mounted Patrol of San Mateo County is ready to lend a helping hand to its neighbors. Officially designated by the Woodside Fire Protection District and CERPP (Citizens Emergency Response Preparedness Program), the Patrol's 22-acre facility is ready at any time to convert to a relief center. Along with 275 cots, 402 blankets, 84 5-gallon jugs of water, tools and first aid supplies, the Patrol has its own mini power plant, a generator that can service the entire grounds. The Patrol has a fully functioning indoor kitchen, a propane-driven outdoor cook stove and its own well. And the Patrol is ready to handle more than just humans; those of the four-legged persuasion will find safety and solace within the large riding arena, livestock pens and 20-stall barn. From young to old, humans to horses, the Mounted Patrol is ready to help!
